THE MURDER TRIAL

Wife of the Accused Declines to Give Evidence in the Case

FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Court resumed the trial of Lilge at 2 o'clock. The court room was crowded.

Leopold Grams was first placed in the box. He said he lived at Bruderheim with his father. Worked for Leslie and Nix. Was there at the time of fire. He slept in the house where Leslie formerly lived and got meals there. Worked outside; not in the store. Saw Leslie the evening before the fire about ten o'clock in the store. Witness and his father, Nix, Campbell and his two sons were there. Witness' father went away, Campbell went next. Witness went out and went home to Nix's house. Nix followed. Witness slept downstairs. Nix slept in the room next. Mrs. Nix woke him up and he saw the store burning. At first thought it was the stables. Did not hear the noise of an explosion. Mrs. Nix called him twice. The roof was on the store, yet when he arrived, Nix came down to the fire too. Witness went around to the front of the building. No windows or doors were left. He called for Leslie but got no answer. Afterwards he saw the body in the store. He could see the naked skull, the hair being gone. As far as he could judge the body was lying on its back. The building burnt to the ground. The trunk of the body was left after the fire stopped. Mr. Allbrecht, the minister, came over. Allen, the school teacher, also was there. Hoeme, Lilge and others came after daylight. Witness went up for Allen, more than a mile, came back with him and Werner and were joined by Hoeme on the way.

Leslie kept his money on a shelf in the grocery. Two watches were also on the shelf. Leslie was also wearing one. Witness was here shown a watch which he identified as the one which had been for sale in the store.

Witness was at the funeral of Leslie on Sunday. Nix, Hoeme, Lilge were also there.

Witness talked with Lilge after the funeral. Went to work for Lilge on Monday. Could not remember how long before he and Lilge were arrested. Lilge said he suspected Hinkleman thought he murdered Leslie. Witness went to Hinkleman's house with Lilge. Asked Lilge if he had anything to do with the matter and he said "No." The Hinklemans were talking and witness and Lilge went there to see what they had to say. They told about meeting Lilge on the road the night of the fire. Lilge said he was after a horse. Had told witness before going into the house that he had not been on the road.

Witness talked in the guard room with Lilge, who said it was too bad that they were in prison over another man. Lilge said later he was sure Hoeme did the murder. Witness asked how he knew. Lilge said he knew. Later said that Hoeme gave him $10 at the fire and told him to keep quiet. Lilge wanted witness to swear that he had seen Hoeme give Lilge the $10. Witness had not seen this, and would not swear so. Lilge asked witness to get him two revolvers when witness was released and carry them around to the back of the guard room and shove them under a stone there. Witness refused. Lilge also asked witness to swear that he had seen Hoeme on the road the night of the fire. Witness said he couldn't.

Cross-questioned by Mr. Biggar, witness said he had worked two months at Leslie's. Sometimes he went to Hoeme's for the mail. Witness admitted that he had no use for Hoeme, who was cross to everybody. Witness never remembered seeing Hoeme at Leslie's store at any time. He knew Leslie was trying to get the post office. A petition was got out and the post office was not changed. When he went to Hoeme's the morning of the fire, witness saw tracks in the snow of some one going in but none going out. It did not snow after 11 o'clock the previous night. Witness went to Hoeme's for tobacco and to see what he had to say. Told Hoeme about the fire and Hoeme said it was too bad, and he had seen the light on the wall. Hoeme went up to the place and gave orders that witness allow no one to go near the fire. Showed him a knife near by and told him to let no one touch it. Said to arrest any one that went near the fire. Witness said it was about a week after they were arrested that

THE CITY COUNCIL

HELD REGULAR SESSION

Discussed the Park Question—Confirmed Voter's List

The city fathers were deep in a discussion of the Whitelaw fire and the water works last evening in the council chamber when His Worship Mayor McKenzie called them to order, and announced the meeting open for the transaction of business.

There were present with the Mayor, Aldermen Griesbach, Picard, Bellamy, Boyle, May, Clark, and Fraser, and city solicitor, N. D. Beck. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

COMMUNICATIONS

There was a letter from Munson, Allen, Laird and Davis, Winnipeg, in reference to the agreement between Edmonton and the C.N.R. They wished to know whether land had been acquired for right-of-way and station grounds at Edmonton, and whether the certificates of title had been issued. If so, they would be pleased to receive the same.

It was doubtful in the minds of some of the Aldermen whether the agreement between the city and the railway company had ever been fully carried out. The matter was finally left in the hands of the city solicitor.

Geo. T. Bragg, agent of the Dominion Express Co., wrote saying that last June he had paid an insurance agent's license of $25, and that lately he had received a note demanding $33.60 taxes on floor space. Mr. Bragg carries on an insurance business, and other agencies in the same office in which he does the business of the Dominion Express Co. He must have an office, he said, for his agencies. All the agencies he had were on commission, and he had to provide the office. He was willing to pay the amount of floor space tax, but asked that his license fee be remitted.

Secretary Kinnaird explained that the notice for floor space tax was intended for the Dominion Express Co., and not for Mr. Bragg, although the amount would probably have to come from Mr. Bragg's own pocket. The Express Co. was assessed on the roll for $2160, which brought the floor space tax to $33.60. His Worship thought as the Express Co. were doing a large business in the city and were taking a good deal of money out of the city, it was only reasonable that they should pay taxes. If Mr. Bragg had to furnish an office in which to transact the business the company would surely furnish him with funds to do so, or allow him a consideration. The matter was referred to a special committee to look into and report at the next meeting.

A letter was received from Miss Morrow who is in the millinery business in the Deggendorfer Block. She had received notice demanding taxes for a full year, whereas she had only occupied the store since Sept. 1st. Mrs. Astley, former proprietress having retired then.

Secretary Kinnaird said that Mrs. Astley had appealed some time ago, when she had received tax notice, on the ground that Miss Merrow now conducted the business. Mr. Jones, brother of Mrs. Astley had appeared before the council on her behalf, and had then said that Miss Morrow was satisfied to accept the assessment. His Worship thought that Mr. Jones had taken too much upon himself to speak for Miss Morrow, and the communication was referred to the special committee.

A communication was received from the board of trade enclosing a copy of a resolution passed at the meeting of the board on Tuesday. The resolution was to the effect that whereas the time would soon come when public parks, for recreation grounds would become a necessity in the city, not only for sanitary, reasons, but also as

WAREHOUSE BURNED

EARLY LAST EVENING

The Whitelaw Co's Warehouse on Queen's Ave Destroyed by Flames

The warehouse of the Whitelaw Co. Ltd., opposite the market square on Queen's avenue was burned with its contents early last evening.

The alarm rang shortly after six o'clock. Unfortunately there was a brief delay in getting out the brigade and when the water was turned on it was impossible to save the building. The warehouse being frame and partly filled with baled hay, made ready fuel for the hungry flames which in a few moments had spread to all parts of the building and were rolling up in a pyramid of fire which lighted the neighboring streets for blocks around, and revealed the long lines of anxious spectators watching that proverbially rare occurrence—a fire in Edmonton. The efforts of the brigade were directed to preventing the fire spreading to the surrounding buildings. These are all frame and the neighborhood being congested the danger of the most serious conflagration in the history of the town was great and was increased by a strong southerly wind which carried the sparks in showers onto the neighboring roofs. The brigade, however handled their forces with judgment, playing streams on either end of the burning structure, so that when the collapse came the walls fell inward to the centre. At the same time another hose was kept trained continually on the long coal sheds in the rear of the warehouse and close watch was kept for other outbreaks. The building burned rapidly but a few minutes elapsing before it fell in a blazing heap, when the streams were concentrated upon it the danger of further damage was soon over.

Beside the loss of the Whitelaw Co., the Alberta Milling Co. lost some $3,000 worth of grain sacks stored in the warehouse. The total loss is about $4,500.

The cause of the fire is unknown.

MUNICIPAL MATTERS

The approach of the municipal elections is the occasion of an annual awakening of interest in civic affairs and while no conspicuous movement is yet discernible in the body politic the coming fortnight will probably reveal the usual degree of public concern in the city's affairs. The people of Edmonton are probably not unusually excitable, but they do not fail to discharge the duties of citizenship in as intelligent and ready manner as those of contemporary western cities.

It is more than ordinarily desirable that this should be the case under the present circumstances, and that the public interest should be concentrated on the vital question of selecting the best available men to fill the vacancies occurring in the city council. As the mayoralty term is one year only, a contest for the office of chief magistrate is always among the things to be expected. While the aldermen are elected for two year terms, the charter provides that one half the members shall retire each year. It will be necessary to select aldermen to fill the vacancies caused by the expiry of the terms of Aldermen Fraser, Clark, Picard and Griesbach. The vacancy caused by the resignation of Ald. McLeod some time since will be filled by appointment by the council, the appointee to sit out the balance of the two year term to which Ald. McLeod was entitled.

Edmonton is completing the first year of cityhood and it is a matter of considerable concern to enquire what has been accomplished during that time. A city, as a state, is more than temporarily and immediately affected by the manner in which public affairs are conducted in the early stages of its career. The history of nearly every large Canadian city teems with instances of the costliness of negligence and error in the early years of city life, and every instance stands as a warning to rising communities to avoid a danger spot. It is a necessity of the case that early city government may be temporarily good but ultimately bad—that the management of affairs today may be honest and may be efficient so far as today is concerned, but may fail through negligence or fear to accomplish the broader duty of preparing for tomorrow. No city council in Edmonton for many years will be doing its whole duty to the city which confines its attention solely to the present and does not contribute something in the way of initiative or improvement to the permanent advancement of the city and to the provision for its future development.

The charter under which Edmonton became a city introduced a somewhat radical change in the system of municipal government, and the first year under the charter has been something of the nature of an experiment in the adaptation of the new method. Unfortunately considerable valuable time was lost early in the year in getting the machine under way and the experiment has in consequence not been as complete as might have been. On the whole for the time in operation the commissioner system appears to have worked fairly well. A certain degree of misunderstanding and dissatisfaction is certain to be encountered in the inauguration of any measure of such radical nature as the city charter and large allowance must be made for this public distrust of the new and strange. The city council, too, has never succeeded in locating exactly the boundary line between the routine duty of the commissioners and matters requiring the direct attention of the council. This is unfortunate as it allows a certain laxity on the part of both commissioners and council in dealing with unpleasant matters which may reasonably be supposed by each party to lie within the duty of the other. The trouble probably originates in an indefinitesness in the charter or in the interpretation thereof and can be removed possibly by practice, or by amendment if necessary. This done, and the public mind accustomed to the change it is reasonable to anticipate from the new system far better results than have yet been possible.

NOTABLE WESTERN LADY

A lady with a most interesting experience, Mrs. Moodie, wife of Major Moodie, of the Northwest Mounted Police, is staying with her sister, Miss Fitzgibbon, in Toronto, says an exchange.

She has been in frozen parts where she was most curiously regarded by the natives as the first white woman they had ever seen. But Mrs. Moodie was equally interested in the natives, and collected about a hundred splendid photographs, which she has had mounted and bound into a handsome volume for presentation to Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The lady explorer made a special study of the Esquimaux, who, she says, are being rapidly decreased by starvation. Their children have been dying off fast, which may be accounted for by the mothers not giving them any clothes at all to wear. The youngsters, like their fellow-beings in tropically hot countries, play around with the thermometer 38 below without a scrap of clothing or a bit of fire to protect them. Mrs. Moodie thinks the government will do more for these people and will transport them further south to the shores of Hudson Bay.

The natural features of the country are lovely. She never saw such rich colorings as in the wealthy profusion of wild flowers which strew the shores of Ungava Bay. There is little night in the north. It is always partly light. The expedition christened Prefontaine Harbor in Ungava Bay after the minister of marine and fisheries. The promontory at the entrance was called Cape Laurier; and the island which protects it, White Island, after the leader of the expedition.

IN THE SOUTH COUNTRY

(E. W. Thompson in the Winnipeg Free Press)

Macleod, Southern Alberta, Tuesday, a.m., Oct. 31.—Here the occupant of a west-looking room enjoys a rare pleasure in hairbrushing, because the mirror pictures the Rocky mountains as a background. Thus the performer obtains the charming suggestion of occupying, for once, a Rooseveltian position. The mountains 40 miles distance show as a range of pyramidal hills, snow covered, their bases hidden by the high hay-colored uplands of the Pincher Creek region, now the greatest free cattle-range in America, so one is told here. Macleod formerly headquarters of the N. W. M. P. and still occupied by a considerable force, is about 3,200 feet above sea level. It is a gravelly place of some 800 people, on the Old Man river, a tributary of the Belly, which it joins at Fort Kipp, about 17 miles slightly north of east from here, as the crow flies, which he does not seem to do often in this region. The Belly flows rapidly on through or near Lethbridge, 26 miles straight east thence to a junction with the Bow river at the Grand Forks, some 55 miles east and 17 miles north of Lethbridge. There the Belly and the Bow both lose themselves in the south Saskatchewan, which moves on a great bend northeastward until it receives the Red Deer river that drains a great part of central Alberta. These particulars are specified solely to establish a basis for indicating the irrigation proposition in this province. Macleod is about 3,200 feet above sea level; Calgary on Bow river, about 100 miles north and 30 west of Macleod, is about 3,428 feet in altitude; Red Deer, 125 miles nearly due north of Calgary, is of 2,856 feet altitude. Now Medicine Hat, on the South Saskatchewan, about 160 miles east of a straight line drawn between Macleod and Calgary, is but 2,171 feet in altitude. These figures indicate the rapidity with which the Belly, the Bow and the Red Deer systems descend on their eastward courses. The fall from Macleod is more than 1,000 feet in 160 miles easting of the Old Man water. The Bow river water after passing Calgary, descends more than 1,200 feet in the same easting; the Red Deer similarly falls some 640 feet. As the waters descend so, speaking by and large, does the plateau fall eastward. Hence by leading the high-level water through canals gradually up to the neighboring plateau levels, it is established quickly in channels so high above the more easterly and lower plateau, that it can be distributed over the latter in subsidiary canals and lateral ditches.

This is being done on a great scale about Lethbridge and about Calgary, to say nothing of minor irrigation works. It is believed by the irrigation engineers, that the south Saskatchewan can be largely diverted over the neighboring plateau as far eastward as Regina, 500 miles east of Calgary, with the effect of highly fertilizing much country now too arid for cultivation. No close approximation to the area that would thus be brought under the plow can be made in the present lack of thorough contour or topographical surveys, a work urgently requiring attention by the Dominion Government. To that authority every sort of requisition and complaint touching the development of the agriculture of the new provinces will, of course be addressed so long as Ottawa retains nominal possession of Alberta and Saskatchewan wild lands. The cost of administering these lands exceeds the money received from them; the long purse of the Federal Government of Canada is evidently necessary to the providing of all the desirable information touching their nature and their "lay", yet Sir. Wilfrid Laurier, because he did not burden the Western people with costs of his "white elephant," is being now furiously denounced by stumpers, who proclaim themselves peculiarly champions of provincial rights!

This communication was to have discoursed on various local irrigation works in Alberta, but "the best laid plans of mice and men gang aft agley," i.e., don't always work. Breakfast meditations were dispelled by the sudden and unexpected appearance of Hon. Frank Oliver, Canada's minister of the interior, who is stumping on behalf of the Liberal interests in the Alberta elections of Nov. 9. He spoke 40 miles from here last evening, travelled pretty much all night. Appears fresh and lively, means to drive today across country to Cardston, 36 miles by road, and intends to speak there this evening. Mr. Oliver has kindly offered me a seat in his wagon which has been cheerfully accepted, partly because driving over the prairie is a good joy, and partly because I should otherwise have had to take the drive solus and at my own charges tomorrow. Also, the minister is a racy and versatile talker, who knows Alberta probably better than any other living man. The drive to Cardston, a Mormon town close to the International boundary should, therefore, yield information.

Cardston, Evening, Oct. 31.— From 10 a.m. until 5.30 p.m., except a 90 minutes' stop for luncheon, we drove almost straight due south, heading a little east of Chief's mountain in Montana, a great peak whose summit rounding up from the northwest, appears chopped off, as a farmer's stack is cut down by a hay knife, to the southeastward. All day was sunny and warm, the northwest breeze scarcely cool. When the wind comes off the mountains from a more southerly west it is the famous "Chinook," which was at once the rancher's blessing and the farmer's curse, until the latter took to planting fall wheat. The Chinooks dessicate the wild grass early in the fall, making it as good as cured hay. They clear off snow during winter so often that cattle and horses can crop the cured grass throughout the winter, and so keep in good condition without other food. Chinooks so warm thaw the ground in spring that farmers can get to ploughing in March, but if they sow spring wheat it seldom finds enough moisture for fair growth before the wilting midsummer. Fall wheat sowed in July gets such a growth before winter comes that it can endure through the Chinook-caused aridity of spring, and be ready to harvest in early August. This is the foundation of the great fall wheat culture that has marked South Alberta agriculture the past two or three seasons. It was not due, as is usually asserted, to the initiative of Mormon or Eastern Canadian settlement beyond. His reserve has an area of Mounted Police Constable Charles Kettle, an amateur experimentalist in agriculture. He grew fall wheat for some seven or eight years before anybody else escaped from the presumption that he knew nothing about farming and that his example should therefore be eschewed. A monument possibly in the form suggested by Charley's surname, may yet denote Alberta's tardy recognition of his agricultural genius. We drove past extensive stubble of the grain today and saw one farmer seeding it with a four-horse team drill—evidently another experimentalist since the usual opinion is that fall wheat must be sowed here not later than mid-August.

The forenoon trail had the high clay buttes of the Belly river eastward, with the reserve of the Blood Indians beyond. His reserve has an area of about twenty-one townships or 756 square miles. The band numbers only about 1,200 souls. As the Dominion Government subsidizes the Indians, and also gives them a large proportion of their food, it would seem expedient to support them, wholly and in comfort rather than keep so great a tract out of settlement. We saw little of the Bloods, except a collection of cabins about a distant agency and the establishment of the Roman and Anglican missions. Occasionally a warrior in ordinary store clothing, sometimes a squaw more picturesque in her head-covering blanket, were on the trail. About Stand Off, where the road crosses the Belly near its confluence with the Waterton river, two braves arrived at our luncheon stopping place with a load of coal from the Galt mines at Lethbridge, some twenty-five miles distant.

In the afternoon we crossed the reserve and still saw few of the Bloods. They rear a good many horses, and cattle, they serve pretty well as hands on ranches, but agriculture they will

Murder Trial

Lilge said he was sure Hoeme had done the murder. After the witness and Nix had gone home from Leslie's on the night of the fire they had sat around smoking in the kitchen and Nix told stories for about twenty minutes. Went to bed and woke up about half-past two. The warehouse had been burned by that time.

Agusta Henkleman sworn, said she lived at Bruderheim, and was the wife of Jno. Henkleman. Lived one mile from Leslie's store. She remembered the night of the fire and was at the Moravian church that night. Her son Daniel, was with her. They went home at 11 o'clock. Met Lilge on the road. He was going toward the store. There was a light in the store when she came out of church. The fire was on Wednesday night. They did not speak to Lilge nor Lilge to them. He had nothing in his hand. Lilge came to witness' house a week after Leslie's funeral with Grams. Lilge did not say anything, but Grams asked her if she was sure it was Lilge they met on the road. She said "Yes." Witness said to Lilge, "You tell where we met." Lilge said he knew where they met, and knew what he went after. Two daughters were with witness at the church, who went home about 9 o'clock.

Cross-examined, witness said she had never been offered a reward. People were talking about a reward, but her husband never asked for a reward. Witness said she remembered asking Koermann if it were possible to get a reward. Mr. McDonald asked witness what she meant by "reward." Witness said it was for expenses for her journey.

The next witness was Lydia Hinkleman. She was a daughter of John Hinkleman and lived across the road drom Lilge. Left church the night of the fire at 9 o'clock and went hime with her sister Jane. The house was about a mile. Met Lilge on the road. Lilge was going toward the church and store.

Daniel Hinkleman was then sworn and said through the interpreter that he remembered the fire. Was to church with his mother. Came home at 11 o'clock, met Lilge on the road going toward the store.

Julia Lilge, wife of the accused, was then called. At the mention of his wife's name, the prisoner leaned forward eagerly, and, when she appeared in court, child in arms, he was visibly overcome but recovered himself in a moment. When the oath of witness had been read to her, Mrs. Lilge said through the interpreter, that she did not wish to give evidence because of her sorrow. She said she had been told she did not need to if she did not want to.

This was rather surprising, Mr. McDonald said, as the women had quite willingly given evidence at the preliminary.

At the request of Mr. McDonald the jury adjourned for a moment and the Crown prosecutor said to His Lordship that probably some one had been frightening the witness, very likely the father of the accused, who was a minister at Bruderheim. Asked again if she would give evidence, Mrs. Lilge made answer, "I don't want anything more to do with the whole thing."

"Well," said Mr. McDonald, "I suppose we will have to let her go then," and the woman was led out of the court room. The jury were then recalled and proceedings continued.

Sergeant Pennyquick, the chief witness in the case was then put upon the stand.

He said he was a sergeant in the Mounted Police. Went to the scene of the murder on Feb. 26th, accompanied by Corp. Joyce. Made a search through the ashes of the fire. Found a brass buckle. Went to house of the accused, searched stable and house. Found nothing of interest. Knew nothing of Lilge and Gram's arrest. Got a warrant for Hoeme's arrest on the night of the 27th. Drove to the Fort with Corp. Joyce, and the prisoner, Lilge satrted to tell them about the burning of the store. Witness cautioned him and Lilge said he would tell everything.

LILGE'S STORY

Lilge told witness he had met Hoeme between Leslie's store and the bridge with what he took to be a revolver in one hand and a packet in the other. Hoeme had spoken to him and said "I have filled at order I had given you." Previously Hoeme had asked Lilge to get Leslie out of the road and Lilge refused. After he met Hoeme, he went back toward his house, then back to the store. The door was closed but not locked, and he went in. The trunk of a body was lying across the door. He saw blood on the breast. Thought he might as well make something out of the chance and took goods, found on the shelf about $160. He filled two sacks with clothes, and also took the watches hanging on the shelf.

Witness had then asked Lilge to show him the sacks, and Lilge said he would.

Lilge said he never saw a third watch. He carried the goods towards his house. Took one sack home and hid it in sawdust, and went back for the other sack and cached it also. Went back and saw the store burning and decided to hold onto the goods.

Prisoner took witness down about a quarter of a mile south-west of Lilge's house, to show him the sacks. Found two sacks in a water course and partly covered with snow. Lilge said there was more truck down stream. There they found two watches with a charm attached under a willow. Three yards further they found a tobacco sack which contained three bills and a small sack with more money, altogether $137.05; $4.05 being silver. In a coat which was under a haystack, was a bottle of sweet nitre. When about starting back, Lilge told him that Hoeme had given him the sack at the store, which contained $10 and a paper on which were some words. Lilge said the paper was in his overalls. Witness had examined the clothes but could not find the paper. Witness saw a threshing tank with a paper floating in it. He cut the face of on the paper. He also found two pieces of chain. Searched the fire box of an engine in which he found the cover for a watch and a watch. Lilge said he had put the watch there because he did not want the police to find it on him. Lilge had before denied any knowledge of the third watch and afterwards said he had left it on the counter in the store, and after the fire had seen it and put it in his pocket.

A short time after the preliminary, witness was searching the clothes of accused, and found in a pocket what looked like the ring of a watch. The number of a watch had been given him before he went to Bruderheim and the number corresponded with the number on the watch found in the boiler of the traction engine.

Cross-examined by Mr. Bowen, witness said he arrested Hoeme about 10 in the morning. Corp. Joyce and Ferris were with him. Searched the building before he left. Had a search warrant, but found nothing mentioned in the warrant. Also searched the place afterwards. Was not at the Fort when Lilge was arrested.

Questioned by Mr. McDonald, witness said Parson Eilbrech was the only interpreter who really assisted him.

Court adjourned until 10 a.m. today.

THIS MORNING'S SESSION

When the trial of Lilge opened this morning at ten o'clock, S. Nankin, jeweller, was put in the witness box and identified the watch said to have been found by Lilge after the fire.

Corp. Joyce corroborated the story of Sergt. Pennyquick. These were the last witnesses called by the crown prosecutor.

Mr. Biggar, then moved that the prisoner be discharged, the evidence not being enough to convict him him, but the motion was not granted.

Mr. Biggar then called John Sheurman, brother-in-law of the accused. He testified to small thefts made by Lilge. Rev. And. Lilge, father of the accused, Carl Ebert and Dr. Hislop also gave evidence tending to show that the prisoner was a kleptomaniac.

Mrs. Hohme testified to her husband's disagreeable manner. The night of the fire he was restless. He was in the habit of coming in at all hours and swearing at her. Witness had given a knife to the police as Sergt. Pennyquick had asked her for weapons. Hohme had given his revolver away in 1898, never had one since.

Sergt. Pennyquick was recalled by Mr. McDonald, and told of the condition of the knife when he received it.

This closed the evidence and court adjourned till two o'clock to hear the summing up.

Faith

You cannot be expected to have faith in Shiloh's Consumption Cure, the Lung Tonic, as a cure for Colds, Coughs and all diseases of the air passages, if you have not tried it. We have faith in it, and to convince you that it will cure you we guarantee it. If it does cure you it costs you nothing. If it does it costs you 25c. That's fair. Try it to-day.

Shiloh

has cured many thousands of the most obstinate cases, and we do not hesitate to say that it will cure any Cold, Cough, Throat or Lung trouble. If we did not believe this we would not guarantee it absolutely as we do. Shiloh has had an unbroken record of success for thirty years. It has stood every possible test without failure. Isn't that proof of its curative properties. Further is found in the many testimonials of those who have tried Shiloh and been cured. Mrs. Archie Taylor, Asaph, Pa., writes:—

"I bought a bottle of Shiloh's Consumption Cure and found it very beneficial. I have two children and they had a terrible cough. I gave them everything I could think of, but they got no better until one evening my husband bought a bottle of Shiloh. We gave it to the children when they went to bed, and they slept all night. It cured them completely. I shall always keep it in the house."

WINNIPEG MARKETS

[From the Commercial]

Trade in Manitoba wheat in the Winnipeg Market has shown a good demand most of the time. Prices seem to be influenced more by the fluctuations in the American market than by anything else, although the large bulk of wheat must go for export. The lake freight situation is seriously against prices. Owing to delay in unloading at the other side vessels lose at least one trip out of three they could make, and freight rates are higher in consequence, the rate now being 5c per bushel as compared with 2c at the beginning of October. The increase in freight rates decreases the price of wheat at this end. Today's prices are: No. 1 hard, 81c; No. 1 northern, 77 3-4c; No. 2 northern, 75 1-2c; No. 3 northern, 73 1-2c; spot or delivery first half November. Futures on the option market closed, Nov., 77 5-8c; Dec. 75 5-8c; May, 81c. All prices are for in store Fort William and Fort Arthur.

Oats—No. 1 new oats, 32c.; No. 2 oats, 31c per bushel in car lots on track Winnipeg.

Barley—No. 3, 36c per bushel; No. 4, 32c per bushel, car lots on track here.

Monkey Brand Soap makes copper like gold, tin like silver, crockery like marble and windows like crystal.

For Family Colds

A reliable cough and cold cure should be always in the house ready for use the moment the first symptoms appear.

It is always easier, cheaper and better to check a cold in the very beginning.

It is safer, too.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure, the Lung Tonic, has been tested for thirty-three years, and tens of thousands of homes in Canada and the United States to-day are never without it.

A dealer writes: "Shiloh's Consumption Cure is without doubt the best remedy for Coughs and Colds on the market. Once used, my customers will buy no other.—L. Elsley, Nassagaweya, Ont."

If it were anything but the best would this be so? Try it in your own family. If it does not cure, you get back all it cost you. We take all the chances. Neither you nor your dealer can lose. Isn't that fair? 25c. is the price. All dealers in medicine sell 93

SHILOH

The selection of tobacco takes time and great care—the conditions of its growth, the soil, the planting, and the cultivation, must all be considered.

I have studied tobacco from the seed to the cigar. I have a thorough knowledge of the qualities grown on the different plantations in the Manicaragua district of Cuba, where the best tobaccos are produced. It is from the best of these plantations that I buy the filler of my Pharaoh Cigar.

I was the first manufacturer in Canada to use Manicaragua tobacco. It proved such a winner that the tobacco agents in New York sell thousands of bales of tobacco under that name that was never within one hundred miles of the district.

I visit these plantations every season, and personally select the tobacco I buy. The growers there call me a tobacco crank because I am so careful and particular in the selection of my tobacco. I would rather be thought a crank than jeopardize the quality of my Pharaoh cigar.

I know that every time you smoke a Pharaoh cigar you will thank me for being a tobacco crank—that is full recompense for my trouble and care.

None genuine unless branded "Pha-ro." Price 10 cents.

A Business Proposition

Do you want to make more money from your cows? Are you now trying to skim cream the old way, with crocks and pans, or a "tin-can" separator? If so, you are losing money every day. Would it not be simply "good business" to invest a moderate sum in a U. S. Separator which, by getting practically all the cream, turns your present daily loss into a daily gain? Consider the actual experience of one farmer who learned such an investment was "good business."

DEXTER, IA., July 7, 1905.

We have been using the U. S. Cream Separator for over three years, and are more than pleased with it. It skims clean and runs easy. From nine cows it paid for itself nearly four times in one year. I recommend it to my neighbors, and believe the time is near when more of the U. S. Separators will be used by those who have seen mine. In regard to the wear of the machine, I think it is ahead of any other. FRANCIS JONES.

Mr. Jones' case isn't exceptional, for in our illustrated book, No. 55-C, we have gathered some of the thousands of letters received showing similar experiences, varying only in degree, depending upon individual conditions. Many thousands of milk producers have found it extremely "good business" to invest in an Improved not, and probably cannot pursue. Mr. Oliver's belief appears to be that the Indian cannot be justly blamed for failure as a routine laborer, that he is "made so," that his temperament the result of ages upon ages of hunting and nomadic life is such that regular, monotonous labor literally destroys him, wears him out mentally, puts him in a mind to either cut madly loose, or lie down and die of sheer weariness for change and excitement. The Indian can loafe, but not contentedly. He consents to live inactively simply because his primal instinct of self-preservation is stronger than his equally primal instinct to cut loose, defy the authorities, rove, or kill. This seems to be the gist of Mr. Oliver's curiously interesting remarks. One of his reflections was "the Indian is a gentleman;" in reference to the courtesy of savages, their responsiveness to honorable treatment and to shades of manner. Is not the history of the world largely that of the atrocities which gentlemen permit themselves when their sensitive spirits feel outraged? The Berserker and the Malay running amuck may be regarded as merely gentlemen in a rage.

U. S. CREAM SEPARATOR

This was the Blackfoot country down to some twenty years ago. The Blackfoot confederacy included the Bloods, Piegans and Sarcees. There was no Christianizing them. Once the Rev. Mr. Tibbitts, an Anglican missionary, desired his interpreter to explain why all his strenuous efforts to convert the tribesmen had failed.

"I have been fair and open with them," said the good man. "I have treated them well; I have taught them the truth carefully; I have striven and prayed for and with them; yet I can lead none of you all to prayer. I think I must depart since my work here appears wasted."

Tim, the interpreter, was much concerned, being fond of Mr. Tibbitts. He sought to console the missionary:

"Do not feel so downcast, sir," said Tim, "we do pray, or some of us, anyway. Take my own case. Last week there was a Piegan came visiting our camp, wanting to gamble. He knew I used to be a great gambler until you taught me it was wrong. Then he said I could not play the game. He said I had forgotten how. He taunted me in every kind of way. I began to feel it would be wrong to let that Piegan go away in his boastful pride with such fine horses too. So at last I agreed to play him. We sat down to the sticks. That Piegan prayed to his god and I prayed to your God. He stood by me well just as you promised, sir. We played all day, and I sent that Piegan home afoot."

In 1877, Mr. Oliver, then a young printer, attended an assemblage of the Blackfoot nation, under Crowfoot, their great chief. They were met by Governor Laird, who was attended by some 200 of the mounted police. The purpose was to conclude a treaty for the aboriginal title in the Blackfoot country. Seven ladies were present with the governor's party, all fashionably garmented, coolly investigating the teepees. There were 7,000 braves, each armed with Henry 16-shooters, one or two navy revolvers, and a prominent sheathe knife. Not a man of them let go of his gun. They appeared in a suspicious humor. If trouble had begun the whites would have been wiped out in ten minutes. In this situation Governor Laird spoke at length, explaining the wishes of the Dominion Government. Now, the only known interpreter present was Jerry Potts, a Blackfoot factotum of Crowfoot, whose jaws fell as he listened to the governor. Diplomatic English was wholly beyond Jerry's understanding. He stared, and did not attempt to translate. In the temper of the Indians there was no telling what might not come of suspicions roused by this failure. They might opine that the governor was deriding or insulting them by talking gibberish, or by talking deliberately and for evil purposes, over their head. Nothing could be done. The conference broke up. It seemed that the conference must be left over, perhaps for a year, with possibly disastrous consequences, perhaps war. Then Crowfoot bethought him of an old squawman in his entourage, one Bird, an Englishman, a graduate of Oxford. He had long taken to the Indian life, and was maintained in great age, by Blackfoot bounty. The conference was recalled. Between the two parties stood the long-haired snowhead, 85 years old, bent, feeble, apparently so weak that he might be unequal to the duty thrust upon him. But he began instantly when Laird ended, at once a flowing transation, with plain gestures, to the Indians. Then Crowfoot, a great orator spoke. The old man was as prompt in rendering the Indian into scholarly English. Thus the treaty was gradually arranged. It turned out that old Bird had acted in a similar capacity between the U. S. authorities and the Indians long before. He had then been paid $40 a day during the time employed. Governor Laird paid him at the same rate, as it was recognized that he would have been cheap at ten times the price.

will soon be needed, and no doubt they will go with a rush.

If you want a first class up to date Cast Iron Range that has been a winner for many years, we have the "Happy Thought." There is more of this Range in use than any other one Range in Canada, and no person has ever heard of a poor one. Then, if you want an all steel and mallable iron range, we have the "Monarch." You cannot break this range, and it has a mirror polished top which makes it a thing of beauty to look at as well as to use.

For any up to date line of heating stoves we think we have them all beat. It is not a case of you having to take what we have, our assortment justifies us in saying you can get just what you want from us.

We have from the smallest to the largest heating stoves in any style and for any purpose, to burn both coal and wood, or both. The prices are made to suit the pockets of all, and while we make only a very small profit on each stove we think the quantity we sell justifies us in saying that we can sell on so close a margin and still hold our own. We have everything in Stove Trimmings, and first class Mechanics to deliver and put them up. Do not waste time in looking all over the city, but come direct to us.

In the South Country

Two years ago an old inspector of mounted police, here some years before the buffalo vanished, assured me that they were not exterminated by hunters, as is usually supposed, but by a scourge or plague resembling the mange, which destroyed whole herds about the watering places, and infected all the domestic cattle and horses in the territories. Mr. Oliver was here at the time, and never heard of the plague. His belief is that the buffalo vanished soon after the introduction of breech-loading rifles, not merely because these weapons vastly multiplied the slaughter but because the herds consisted mainly of bulls. From time immemorial, the Indians preferred to kill cows, for two reasons. First, the cow meat was tenderer and sweeter. Second, the cows ran much faster than the bulls, wherefore the Indians regarded killing a cow as an exploit. The balance of the sexes had been gradually destroyed. The herds were thus diminishing in numbers when the breechloaders came along with the railways to perform in short order what would have come about otherwise at no very distant time—the extinction of the buffalo.

Many long tailed, white patched magpies flew about the coulees on our trail today. Gophers were far more numerous than in the country north. A few wild geese were seen in the fields. Great herds of cattle and horses dotted the far-reaching uplands. Even the Rockies, resembling great angular mounds of sugar, with patches of a more solid white denoting perpetual snow, appearing at intervals at about one distance to the right. At sunset Chief's mountain seemed scarcely closer than in the morning, though its mass was thrown up darkly into relief when the sun had far failed to the west. It was dusk when our driver put his horses down the quick descent into the hollow occupied by the Mormon town of Cardston. Here the Latter Day Saints are divided into two political parties, each set having a Mormon candidate for the constituency of Cardston, extending 30 miles north of the International boundary, and about 115 miles east and west. One set of Mormon politicians met us with such heartiness that it was easy to recognize them as sound Liberals. It is not easy to retain any lingering prejudice against a set of men physically so able, and of countenances that fairly shone with good will.

LOCAL

—The Retail Merchants Association meets in Gariepy Hall on Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

—The opening of Reed's tea and bazaar store in the Lee block will be announced in a few days.

—Mr. Rene Lemarchand has been appointed agent in Edmonton for the French line steamers running from New York to Havre, France.

—One of the three live foxes at the Richelieu livery stables was missing this morning. It is a silver fox and is a beauty. The matter has been reported to the police.

—A number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. John McDonald, Kinistino avenue, spent a most enjoyable time last evening in Hourston's Hall. The gathering was in honor of Miss McDonald and her brother, who leave shortly for the old land. Progressive pedro and dancing were the order of the evening. Music was furnished by Miss Richardson and Mr. Richardson in their usual delightful manner.

—Rev. Dr. Chown, general secretary of the Department of Temperance and Moral Reform, will preach in McDougall Church tomorrow morning. Dr. Chown is an able speaker and will discuss a great subject. The morning service in Grace church has been withdrawn so as to enable the congregation to hear Dr. Chown. In the evening the pastors of these churches will conduct their own services.

PERSONAL

Mrs. Geo. Roy went to Wesaskiwin today.

J. Brandon returned from the south yesterday.

Rev. Dr. Chown returned from the south yesterday.

Augustin Fehrer of Winnipeg, has recently purchased the cigar and fruit store kept by James McIlroy, on Jasper avenue, between the post office and Queen's Hotel.

City Council

a matter of beauty to the city. Action should no longer be delayed in securing sites for parks near the centre of the city. The majority of the ratepayers had shown their approval in the matter and the board asked for the serious consideration of the council on the question, and that action be taken immediately. The board was informed that the proper committee had the question under their serious consideration and it was expected that substantial progress would be made before the beginning of the new year.

Ald. May introduced the matter of a hay market and considerable discussion ensued. It was the opinion of the Aldermen that some action should be taken at once to secure a site for such market. Ald. Picard was added to the market committee and the committee instructed to report on the matter of a hay market site at next meeting.

Secretary Kinnaird intimated that this was the day the council would sit as a court of revision on the voters' list. The lists had been posted in conspicuous places for some time that the electors could examine and make appeals for corrections. The following had appealed to have their names added, on the ground that they had become property owners:—H. B. Sayer, R. S. Robertson, F. Smith, A. C. J. Robson, T. Boyle, J. Connell, E. Davis, D. McAffee, J. A. Connell, C. Cass, C. Broderick.

These applications were received and the names will be added.

The following appeals to have names added, because they were property holders. Mr. Kinnaird stated that they had not paid their taxes for this year, however.

J. R. Ferris, E. Ferris, Jas. Curry, Mrs. M. Clara, J. Carpenter, T. May, D. Dunn, W. Holloway.

These appeals were received, and if the taxes are paid before next meeting of the council, the names will be added to the list. The list, with these additions, was then confirmed.

The matter of filling the vacancy in the council was then discussed. At present there is only one vacancy, caused by the resignation of Ald. McLeod. The terms of four of the aldermen expire at the close of the year. The city charter provides that only four may be elected at one election, and these for a term of two years. Vacancies must be filled by appointments. It was thought best to appoint the candidates to the vacancies who receive the highest number of votes after the four who were elected at next municipal elections and a resolution to this effect was passed.

Ald. Griesbach referred to the matter of renovating the council chamber. He thought it was only right, when the elections would shortly be bringing new men into the council, that something should be done to improve the condition of things. He suggested that individual desks be installed, with swinging arm-chairs. Ald. Clark wanted to know if smoking would be allowed in the chamber when it was fixed up. If so, the old chamber was good enough for them. The aldermen were so in favor of having the room fitted throughout with new furnishings, and the commissioners were given power to carry out the work.

It was suggested that a celebration be held when the C. N. R. arrived in the city. The Mayor was asked to complete arrangements for the celebration.

Replying to Ald. Clarke, commissioner Hargreaves said that the water pressure used at the Whitelaw fire was the ordinary domestic pressure, and not the fire pressure. The reason was that the valve in the water tower had not been closed. The commissioners were instructed to inquire into the matter and to see that connections were made between the power house and the tower, whereby the valve could be closed from the power house, thus enabling the full fire pressure to be put on immediately.

The following options were received for post office sites:

Gariepy & Lessard, corner McDougall and Rice, $25,000.

Dr. Whitelaw, Lots 39 and 40, River lot 6, $16,800, with value of buildings included. If allowed to retain and remove buildings, he would drop the price to $15,000.

McDougall & Secord, on the property off Armstrong and N. B. Beck, $6,000 and $3,750 respectively, total $9,750.

Mr. Butchier, lots 33 and 34, opposite Gariepy & Lessard's, $25,000.

J. C. McDougall, on his own property and that of Mr. Ramsey, $6,000 each, total $12,00.

These options are all for sixty days. The matter was left over till next meeting.

YOUNG LIBERAL CLUB

The executive of the Young Liberal club met in the rooms last evening. It was decided to hold a meeting at an early date to make arrangements for continuing the club as a permanent organization. The membership fee of the club will be made very low and it is believed a large number of members can be secured at once.

A delegation from the Y.M.C.A. was present to try to make arrangements for securing the rooms from the club for use during the winter. Mr. Sutherland, on behalf of the proprietor informed the delegation that the club had no jurisdiction in the matter and that in the event of the club not retaining the rooms a society had already applied for them.

ALL SAINTS YOUNG MEN'S CLUB

A social in connection with this club was held on Thursday evening at which a good number were present and a very pleasant time was spent. Most of those present played whist though a few preferred chess, chequers or the now almost forgotten game of ping pong. Mrs. Braithwaite very kindly provided coffee and cake.

Just before the close Mr. Gray spoke of the desirability of the club having a larger room which could be fitted up as a gymnasium, he having ascertained that such a room could be built for a reasonable sum.

The club is open each evening, but the next social, it is hoped, will take place on Thursday, November 30, when a debate will probably take place.

MINING AT WINDY ARM

(Regina Standard)

Colonel J. H. Conrad, one of the largest mine owners in the southern portion of the Yukon district has just passed through Regina on his way to New York and London. He was accompanied by Mr. Lockie T. Burwash, Government Mining Inspector at Whitehorse, who is bound for Toronto to spend a three months' holiday with his father, Rev. Chancellor Burwash, of Victoria University.

Colonel Conrad is at the head of the Conrad Consolidated Mining Company, which is doing a vast amount of work in the famous silver rocks of the Windy Arm district. This company owns now the famous Montana mine there, one of the wealthiest in the north country, and recently the same vein was struck on another claim a half mile away. This vein is more than a mile and a half long and from four to six feet wide, making it the longest chute of continuous high grade ore ever found in the world. It has been estimated by engineers who have made actual measurements that the ore in sight in the Montana mine is worth over $12,000,000. When to this amount is added the value of the other claims, it will be readily understood that Colonel Conrad and his associates have something on which to rely when the proverbial "rainy day" arrives.

The colonel naturally enough, is confident, even enthusiastic, regarding his mines, and he discussed them very cordially with the Standard representative. He did not, however, give any demonstration by means of figures except to say that some of the ore had been shown by assay to be worth $6.00 to the ton. Over $200 worth of gold to the ton had been discovered in some of the samples and it was believed that the vein would average $170 in silver throughout its entire extent.

It was through Mr. Burwash that the Standard representative was able to gather the best information regarding the work on these mines. He said that already 125 men were at work and this number was steadily increasing. Already an aerial tramway four miles long had been built, at a cost of $60,000, and other large expenditures for construction work are now being planned. It is expected that between $1,500,000 and 2000,000 will be spent in developing work and improvements next season. These will include a smelter, which will be erected early in the spring; concentrators, tramways, etc.

The news of the discoveries in the Windy Arm district has attracted hundreds of miners, from all parts of the world, and Conrad city which is the centre of the activity, is now growing at a rapid rate.
